

To Keep One's Balance

In the years prior to the great market crash in the Fall of 1929, when practically everyone was employed and wages high, crops good and prices high, both import and export trade at a record high level, railways busy, and activity manifest in every line of business, any person who gave voice to a note of warning, who urged a slowing up of the pace at which goods were being produced and sold on the installment plan, who offered criticism of the reckless manner in which people of all classes were going into debt because credit was easy, who expressed the opinion that our industrial structure was being expanded far beyond the needs of the country,—such a person was regarded as a confirmed pessimist, a "back number," non-progressive, almost diabolical as a citizen because his viewpoint and attitude was regarded as detrimental to the advancement and welfare of the country.

In three short years the attitude of the general public has swung to the other extreme. Because hundreds of thousands are out of work, wages have been sharply reduced, crops have failed or been reduced in volume, prices have dropped below costs of production, the trade of the country has been all shot to pieces and imports and exports cut in half, with the railways in the doldrums, with every industry and business struggling to keep going, and with the mass of the people now confronted with the obligation of paying those debts they so cheerfully contracted only a few short years ago,—because of these things any person who may now sound a note of courage, who declares that the depression is, after all, only temporary in character, that business will revive, workers again be employed, good crops and better prices come, and prosperity be again established, is laughed at as a hopeless optimist, a dreamer of dreams, or he is derided as an upholder of Capitalism, one who is incapable of learning anything, who is opposed to advancing and improvement in methods, and who lacks all sympathy with those who are suffering at the present time. In a word, it is the person who now looks to the future with hope and courage that is regarded almost as lacking in patriotism.

This swinging from one extreme to another is characteristic of people. So many of us have what has been termed "a one-track mind." We follow the crowd, fall to think for ourselves and exert our individuality, are swayed by the psychology of the mass. We hate to be thought of as "queer" or "different," and pointed at as a pessimistic crank at one time or an optimistic crank at another time, when, as a matter of fact, we are but remaining normal human beings, refusing to be stamped one way or another.

When public opinion thus swings en masse to one extreme or another, the inevitable effect in any democracy is that governments are forced into the taking of actions which the considered judgment of the members of those governments would oppose; which even a majority of the people would oppose in their calmer moments, and which they later do oppose and blame the governments they themselves forced into the taking of such actions. People individually and collectively can be protected and safeguarded to some extent from making mistakes, but they cannot be prevented from making them. Once made they must pay the price of their mistakes. Nobody and nothing can save them from the obligation to pay.

So it is that at the present time, when masses of the people refuse to see any light ahead, any hope for the future, and are obsessed with the idea that the present depression is not a temporary, an abnormal condition, but that it has become chronic and will remain as a permanent condition unless everything is torn up by the roots and a new start made all over again, policies are being advocated and demands made in the light of existing difficulties as if they were, in truth and fact, a permanently established condition.

Such an assumption is false, and policies grounded in a false assumption can have but one result,—the making of disastrous blunders if effect is given to them. Time is difficult to come by, and time that is not permanently remain so. Problems calling for solution are many and great, but they are not insoluble. Changes are necessary, but they are being made every day; always have been and always will be because this is an ever-changing world. Reforms of many kinds are called for, and they too, are being effected. Changed conditions create the necessity for reforms. They have always been effected. There are periods in the world's history when the cause of reform seems to lag almost stop, but it never stops. The movement is ever onward the direction is ever upward.

Facing the danger of being termed an optimistic crank, we have no hesitation in saying that the present condition is not a permanent condition, not a normal one. We go further and say that for people to regard the existing condition as a normal condition, and to adopt policies based on such a false assumption, would be just about the greatest blunder they could possibly make. They would find out, when it was too late, that they had made a mistake greater and more serious in its results than those other mistakes which have been made in its present stage.

If the democratic spirit of state has sprung a leak, we must man the pumps and close up the leaks; not run the ship on to the rocks and smash it up. If our social and economic structure has developed weaknesses, if cracks have appeared in its foundation and walls, if it has shifted somewhat out of plumb, we surely have the brains, the ability, the energy to repair the damage wrought, and are not forced to the extremity of blowing up to the whole structure or tearing it to pieces.

And because we were all too optimistic three, four and five years ago,—and entered upon policies we now realize were mistaken,—and are not just as apt to be making the second mistake of being too pessimistic now and again embarking upon equally mistaken policies, but more serious in their results because they are of a destructive, rather than of a constructive, character? Conditions are not normal. Because they are not normal, our outlook on life is not normal. And when neither conditions nor ourselves are normal is the worst possible time to decide vital issues affecting our whole future.

Treasured Heirloom

Famous Telescope Used By Nelson At Trafalgar Is Sold

The famous auction parlors of Christie witnessed recently the selling of the historic telescope used by Admiral Nelson in the strategic battle of Trafalgar. The treasured piece, which had been handed down for many years as an heirloom, was sold for 1,430 guineas (about $5,750).

Another historic article which dates back to the same naval battle was the silver watch that was presented to Midshipman Pollard after he shot the sharpshooter who had mortally wounded Admiral Nelson. The watch was sold for 135 guineas, about $533.

Monsters Of The Deep

Expedition Will Sink Lights Five Miles In Ocean Depths

Translating the "language" of monsters of the ocean depths, who may send their love calls and hunting cries by flashing lights and mysterious vibrations, will be one objective of an expedition announced by the Smithsonian Institution. Starting Jan. 15, the expedition will grapple five miles under the Atlantic, in regions so far unexplored, for creatures that live there under pressure no land-dweller could withstand and which have no normal eyes because of the inky darkness.

Traps equipped with lights of different colors and intensities will be lowered to learn which best attracts the deep-sea animals.

Headaches and Dizzy Spells Nerves In Bad Condition

Mr. Neil Crawford, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My nerves were in such bad condition I found it almost impossible to get a good night's sleep. I was also bothered with headaches and dizzy spells."

I tried many different remedies, but they did not seem to give me any relief, but after I had taken Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I could hardly believe the change they had made in my condition."

U.S. Deportation Law

Move To Submit Bill To Lessen Severity Of Existing Legislation

A bill mitigating the severity of existing United States deportation laws, under which 40,000 people have been expelled from the United States in the last two years, is ready for submission to congress. It was drafted by Reuben Oppenheimer, Baltimore lawyer, who last year won the Wickham labor enforcement, accusing the labor department of unfair and autocratic practices in its drive to rid the country of undesirable aliens.

Liberal members of congress have more recently voiced two criticisms of the alien laws' policy.—They say that aliens have been sent back to face firing squads or long jail terms for political offences, as for instance anti-Fascists, to Italy and counter-revolutionaries to Russia. It is also charged that aliens have been arrested, held incommunicado and deported after secret hearings before government officers at which they had no opportunity to retain counsel.

The bill written by Mr. Oppenheimer sets up a board of alien appeals to which an alien threatened with deportation may publicly present his case with a lawyer's aid. It also provides that an alien whose deportation to his native land would endanger his life or liberty may go, at his own expense, to any country willing to receive him.

Of the 40,000 people deported since the beginning of 1931 about 5,000 were returned to Canada. Aliens recently held incommunicado at Buffalo for deportation, according to articles published in the press of that city, included a number of Canadians.

Fast Steamship Service

Project Advanced For Rapid Transportation Between Europe and America

Plans for formation of an international syndicate to carry out the project for fast steamer and air transportation between Europe and America, via Galway and Halifax, are well under way.

Speaking at Dublin, Senator John Glendinning, chairman of the Irish Transport Corporation, which is mainly responsible for the project, declared a prospectus would be issued immediately. The capital needed for initial preparations was $125,000, he added. Senator Glendinning said great interest had been aroused in the United States and he had been invited to New York to confer with prominent bankers.

The project involves construction of first-class combined airport and harbor facilities at Galway and Halifax, the respective steamship terminals for Europe and America. The air services will radiate from Galway to Britain and the continent, and from Halifax through the Dominion and to the United States if the scheme eventuates. Senator Glendinning said the governments of the United Kingdom, Ireland, and Canada, were appraised of the scheme.

Automatic Gear Changing

New Device For Cars To Be Patented Soon

A car which changes its own gears is being sponsored by Mr. Vincent Bendix, an American motor engineer, who has been visiting London for the motor show. The driver never needs to touch the gear lever or clutch pedal.

The device was invented by a young man called Marcus, who is in Mr. Bendix's firm. The secret of its operation is being jealously guarded until the patents have been negotiated. So far there is only one car in the world fitted with the device—and that is owned by Mr. Bendix.

The driver can start the engine with the gear lever in "high"—and the lever will change to its proper position of its own accord, making no more noise than the gentle purr of a perfect normal gear-change. The gears even change down the other accord when the car comes to a halt.

New Hat For British Tommy

Fashion Has Decried Soft Headgear And Plus Fours

While the British public awaited American action on the war debts with a gloomy foreboding, the other of parliaments was diverted with a comedy of a cap—or rather, of two caps.

As a part of a new spirit towards military efficiency, the English Tommy is to wear a soft hat and plus fours. But the fashion pundits of Whitehall have decreed just the opposite for letter carriers. The latter is to have a flat-topped cap of the type which was once worn in the army a broderick.

Huskies In Discard

Airplanes Replacing Dog Teaming Out Of The Pas

Dog prices slumped at The Pas, Manitoba, to a new low level when a beautiful team of huskies, plus harness and Alaskan sled, sold for $75. There were five dogs in the team. They were the property of the provincial police, and were sold "on the bid."

They were bought by the Western Trading Company for a trapper at Churchill. Three years ago this team would have sold for $300. The sale has more than passing significance. Dog teaming out of The Pas is now coming to an end. The railways and aeroplanes have put an end to freighting with dogs.

At present all signs point to great activity in the God's Lake gold country to the northeast. In other years many dog trains would have been put into service to handle freight and equipment.

So far this winter there have been only a few calls for dogs. Prospector and miners want to use planes. The trip from Mile 137 Hudson Bay Railway to God's Lake will occupy eight days with dog team. An aeroplane will do the same trip in a couple of hours. So dogs go into the discard.

Screenings For Fuel

Demand For Refuse As Feed Has Practically Ceased

One of the interesting effects of the present low prices for grains is shown in the fact that screenings which during periods of high price found sale even in the export market as a constituent of feeding stuffs is now being used for fuel. Demand for refuse screenings as feed has practically ceased and getting rid of this bulky and fast accumulating material was quite a problem for the elevators until a market was found for its use as fuel at heat and power plants in Northwestern Ontario, in Manitoba and even as far west as Saskatchewan.

His Interpretation

The Indian student, writing a letter to the superintendent of the mission, desired to end with the words: "May heaven preserve you."

Not being quite confident of the meaning of "preserve," he looked up a dictionary. When the letter reached the superintendent it ended with the words: "And may heaven pickle you."

Missionary Believes

Dwarfs Disappearing Tiny Race Now Under Dependency Of African Negroes

Returning to England from a lengthy study of the pygmy race in equatorial Africa, Father Louis Shebesta, noted Austrian missionary, believes this tiny race will disappear entirely.

According to Father Shebesta, there are not more than 20,000 pure pygmies left in Central Africa and these, together with semi-pygmies called Bathwas, totalling some 50,000, inhabit a territory covering some 100,000 square miles limited by the Turi, Lenda and Lindi rivers and distributed among some 333 tribes.

Little by little, he says, these and father have come under the dependency of negro tribes with whom they exchange game against cereals, fruits and arms.

The negro has come to look upon the pygmy as an inferior race and as slaves, Father Shebesta says. Also the meeting with the negro and subsequently the white man has rendered the pygmy familiar with alcohol and infectious diseases.

Nothing short of governmental or private initiative is able, in the opinion of Father Shebesta, to halt the downward trend of the dwarf races, which science and civilization are equally interested in preserving.

Decorated For War Service

Twins Were Wounded In Same Battle During War

For 43 years, William B. and Joseph Sebastian, twins, have been doing interesting things together.

Born at Lynchburg, Tenn, they went to the same schools and enlisted in Company E, 119th Infantry, 30th Division, in 1917.

They sailed for France on the same boat, were wounded in the same battle and returned home on the same ship.

Recently, the War Department decorated them with the Order of the Purple Heart for "military merit." The twins are automobile workers in Detroit.

Canada's Pure Bred Stock

In a report to the Minister of agriculture, A. P. MacVane, chief registration officer, states that a total of 89,120 certificates for Canadian pure-bred livestock were issued during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1932. These were made up as follows: Cattle, 33,288; horses, 1,734; sheep, 13,330; swine, 10,139; foxes, 21,895; dogs, 7,380; poultry, 1,811; and goats, 123.

Puzzle For Customs Officer

Age Of Cat Mummy Seems Question For Expert

Pictures of a London printed picture of an Egyptian mummy, guarded by a customs officer, which has been held up at Crofton pending proof it is more than 100 years old, and so entitled to be admitted free of duty.

The animal, pictures show, is seated on its haunches, and appears about 18 inches in height. It is entirely stripped of its wrappings, and so appears as natural as life, with whiskers and ears in perfect condition. The Cairo agent who sent the mummy alleges it is the most perfect specimen ever taken from an Egyptian tomb, and it is, at least 2,000 years old.

Customs officials admit they are not sufficiently versed in the burial ritual of ancient Egypt, and it will take an expert from the treasury to determine the age of the mummy—at least to determine whether it is below or above the century mark.

Protection Against Forgers

Paris Banks Think Forfeiting Crecques Would Help

Banks in Paris have just taken up the idea of forfeiting as well as crossing cheques as a protection against forgers. One of the private members' bill tabled for the consideration of the new Chamber of Deputies provides for such a measure. There have been many cases in France in which thieves have, by means of chemicals, removed the two diagonal lines and cashed the stolen cheque. The bill states that perforation will prevent this.

Building Giant Bridge

Largest One In Europe Will Be Constructed By Denmark

Denmark is preparing to construct what is believed to be the largest bridge in Europe. It will span the Storstrommen (Great Stream) between Sjalland and the island of Falster, and will be used by railways and vehicles. The total length will be 10,827 feet and the height 85 feet. The cost will total approximately $5,725,000. Work will be started immediately and the structure is to be completed in 1940. It is the first link in the proposed route between Copenhagen and Hamburg.

Powers Resolve To Seek Reduction And Limitation Of Arms

Geneva, Switzerland.—In a document signed Sunday, December 11, by representatives of Great Britain, France, Germany, the United States and Italy, these powers declared their resolve to co-operate in the disarmament conference with a view to seeking substantial armament reductions.

The powers, the document reads, hope "without delay" to work out a convention which shall effect a substantial reduction and a limitation of armaments with the provision for future revision with a view to further reductions.

The biggest step in the agreement appeared to be Germany's expressed willingness to resume her place in the conference.

The conference, thanks to Germany's return and the Franco-German understanding on equality and security, now appears more than ever headed for success, signers of Sunday's declaration agreed.

While they admitted that merely the principle of equality and security had been accepted, and that the application thereof is still a matter for negotiation, it is expected that another five-power meeting will be conducted, probably in London, the middle of January.

The United States delegates said Russia and Japan might join the conference in January.

Trapper Is Murdered

Coroner's Jury Decides Manitoba Victim Met With Foul Play

Pine River, Man.—A coroner's jury investigating the death of John Duhm, 27-year-old trapper, who was found riddled with gunshot lying in a snowbank along his trap line early Tuesday, December 8, has decided he was murdered by some person or persons unknown.

The jury heard evidence of the young man's relatives who found him not far from his parents' home after he had been missing from home all night. He died before regaining consciousness and Royal Canadian Mounted Police have been unable so far to discover any trace of the murderer.

Grain Movement Helps

Many Railworkers Have Been Given Work In Maritimes

Halifax, N.S.—More than 200 railworkers in the maritimes have been given employment since grain and other commodities started to roll eastward toward Halifax from upper and western Canada. Grain is still pouring into the bins at the elevators as fast as it can be handled. Five special trains pulled into Halifax within 24 hours and more are scheduled to arrive shortly.

Grain Shipments Through U. S. Ports Denied Preference

New York.—Interest of Canadian, United Kingdom and United States grain shippers has been shifted from Liverpool to London, England. Refusal of Liverpool customs authorities to allow the six cents per bushel preference on a test shipment of Canadian wheat billed through United States ports, caused the shift in the scene of this latest wheat drama.

Adverse action on the part of the Liverpool officials "was fully expected" by the International Export Association officers, it was said today. Foreseeing this ruling, they had photostatic copies of the certificates and

Bandit Captured

Bank Manager At Vancouver Over-takes Man Who Held Up Employee

Vancouver, B.C.—G. E. Devereaux, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada branch at 16th Avenue and Oak Street, boarded a street-car to capture at gun point a man who had just held up the bank and taken $276. The man gave the name of Harold Knight, 24, and was later charged with robbery with violence.

"I'll drop this bottle of nitroglycerin if you don't hand over the money," the man said to Devereaux, as he held up the branch. Seizing the money as it was passed over to him by W. C. Scott, teller, the bandit ran out and caught an eastbound street car which he just swung around on 16th Avenue. Devereaux followed him with a gun and stopped the street car as it was moving away.

Knight was on the front platform and Devereaux took him off at gun point, lined him up against the outside wall of the bank, keeping his gun at the man's ribs and ordered him to keep his hands high. Constable Albert Barker arrived within a few minutes and handcuffed the prisoner.

Saskatchewan Game Act May Have Amendment

To Prohibit Rifle Use For Shooting Game Birds

Saskatoon, Sask.—Prohibition of the shooting of game birds with rifles may be sought by the Saskatchewan Fish and Game League through amendment of the Saskatchewan Game Act, it was stated by A. E. Bence, K.C., president of that body.

Mr. Bence said he had received numerous complaints from farmers throughout the province requesting that legislation preventing the destruction of game birds by rifle fire be sought at the next session of the legislature.

It was pointed out by Mr. Bence that whole covers of game birds and wood partridge can be picked off with a rifle, which it would be impossible to shoot with a shotgun.

Farmers, according to Mr. Bence, are fearful that the pheasant crop raised last year will be practically wiped out unless some provision against rifle shooting of game birds is inserted in the act.

Golfer Escapes Bandits

British Resident Of China Uses Golf Clubs With Telling Effect

Victoria, B.C.—When W. N. Hansell, British resident of Manchuria, was playing a round of golf on the Harbin course, he was attacked by bandits who sought to seize and hold him for ransom, but he fought them off with his clubs.

His assailants, however, did not flee before they had wounded him in the arm.

With his wounded arm in splints and supported by a sling, Mr. Hansell reached here aboard the "Empress of Canada," en route to London, with his wife and daughter.

The golfer put up unexpected resistance and used his steel golf clubs with telling effect on the heads of the bandits as they closed in upon him. The attention of others on the course was attracted and as help was in sight the bandits made off.

Arms Conference

United States Representatives Reveal Results They Are Striving To Attain

Geneva, Switzerland.—United States representatives at the five-power disarmament negotiations disclosed some of the "concrete results" which they are striving to have incorporated in a proposed temporary protocol.

Alms of the delegation include:

- 1.—Reduction in the size of land forces.
- 2.—Definition of the term "home defence troops" as apart from colonial troops.
- 3.—Abolition of movable artillery larger than 155 centimetres in calibre.
- 4.—Limitation of the tonnage and number of tanks.
- 5.—Limitation of the number and size of military aeroplanes and the fullest publicity regarding their size and type.
- 6.—Complete abolition of chemical warfare.
- 7.—A naval treaty between France and Italy.
- 8.—Recognition of the principle of state supervision of the manufacture of arms and the trade in arms.

It stressed that the proposals did not exclude regional agreements which might later be incorporated in a general disarmament treaty.

Women In Public Life

Washington.—Vivacious Lady Nancy Astor, British M.P., talked to 15 international members before the United States House Foreign Affairs Committee, but she did foregather, in the interests of feminism, with all the women members of congress.

A greater place for women in public life was her theme. She also urged more attention to legislation benefiting women and put in a plea for the federal children's bureau.

The plan for a quiet appearance of Lord and Lady Astor before the committee concerned with House legislation touching on European matters was slipped when it attracted international attention.

France Must Pay

United States To Insist On Settlement December 15

Washington.—United States reply to France's second note appealing for debt relief was handed to Ambassador Claudel by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson.

The note was formulated in extensive conferences between President Herbert Hoover, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, and Mr. Stimson.

It was believed that the communication undoubtedly insisted upon payment of France's December 15 installment on her war debt.

Ambassador Claudel called at Mr. Stimson's suburban home, and the note was presented to him there.

REJECTS FUND ON US

Must Respect Three-Mile Limit

Canadian Government Warns U.S. Against Seizure Of Vessels

Washington.—A warning that anti-smuggling co-operation with the United States would become virtually impossible if the latter continues 12-mile limit seizure of rum runners, has been served upon United States by Canada.

The Canadian government through Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister at Washington, told the State Department that Canada refuses to recognize the right of the United States to make seizures of suspected rum runners outside the three-mile limit except under the treaty between the two countries permitting seizure within one-hour's sailing of shore.

Unless the United States accepts this position, Mr. Herridge said, "any other course . . . would tend to frustrate the co-operation rendered by His Majesty's Government in Canada . . . which has provided effective assistance to your government in curbing, and, insofar as Canadian vessels are concerned, almost eliminating the contraband traffic on the coasts of the United States."

Mr. Herridge protested seizure of the "Mazel Tow" 11½ miles off the Massachusetts coast. The seizure was upheld in lower federal courts under the Tariff Act of 1930.

Use Canadian Wood

Lumber From Canada To Be Used In British Buildings

London, Eng.—An announcement was made in the House of Commons that Canadian soft woods are to be used in place of European woods in all major building contracts that come under the supervision of the commissioner of works.

W. Ormsby-Gore, commissioner of works, told the House he had been advised that there would shortly be available supplies of the Canadian products that would be used for carpentry, internal joinery and general building purposes.

Japan Threatens To Withdraw From The League Of Nations

Geneva, Switzerland.—Japan has threatened to withdraw from the League of Nations unless a resolution calling upon members to refuse recognition to the state of Manchukuo were withdrawn. The threat was voiced by Yosuke Matsuoka, representing Tokyo before the League assembly. It came during a day of haphazard debate in which it was apparent that the League is so hopelessly divided on the Manchurian controversy that there is small chance that it will be settled in Geneva.

Matsuoka spoke defiantly, but his belligerent attitude failed to sway the four lesser powers—Spain, Ireland, Sweden and Czechoslovakia—who presented the non-recognition resolution. The Japanese diplomat, it was understood, will seek to force a vote on the resolution. It is certain to be defeated.

Such a vote, however, would only serve to accentuate the divergence of opinion within the assembly. One group seeks a solution to the problem without offending Japan; the other insists that Japan's knuckles should be soundly rapped for her action in sponsoring the "puppet state" of Manchukuo in Manchuria.

Matsuoka declared that Japan joined the League at Versailles "because we believed the League would be a member."

"Japan's self interests," he said, "dictated that she should not join the League with Russia and the United States as non-members and with China disgruntled at our doors. Many Japanese believe we made a mistake in joining, but we intend to remain loyal."

"The whole Japanese nation backed the Shanghai and Manchurian military activities. Sixty-five million Japanese united as one man. Do you think they are all mad?" Matsuoka referred to Britain and American intervention at Shanghai in 1927, and to United States action in Nicaragua, as analogous to Japan's action in Manchuria.

Among the other speakers Thursday, was Stanley M. Bruce, of Australia, who declared that the Manchurian conflict "has possibilities of war in the Far East, war in the whole world, a tragedy we must bend every effort to avoid."

Bruce expressed the hope the League would not make the mistake of passing a resolution censuring either Japan or China.

Industrial Insurance

Would Provide Fund To Pay Cost Of Unemployment Relief

Winnipeg, Man.—Enactment of legislation to provide some form of industrial insurance to provide a fund to pay the cost of unemployment relief was recommended to the provincial government at a convention of the Union of Manitoba Municipalities. Resolutions favoring the insurance scheme and a reduction of interest charged on loans to municipalities received unanimous support. W. C. Wroth, of Elliot, Man., was re-elected president of the union.

Anglo-Perian Oil Trouble

London, England.—Great Britain has notified Persia that unless cancellation of the Anglo-Perian Oil Company concession there is withdrawn within a week this country will refer the dispute to the Hague court. A report that a cruiser has been dispatched to Persia has been denied officially.

Agriculture Must Be On Profitable Basis

One Of Greatest Essentials To Revival Of Business

Chicago.—President Henry Harman of the United States Chamber of Commerce described indications of reviving business, but said the restoration of agriculture "to a self-respecting and profitable basis" was one of the essentials if prices and employment were to increase. Mr. Harman brought the viewpoint of business before the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Death Of Newspaper Man

Montreal, Que.—Frank Phillips, news editor of the Montreal Star and one of the best known newspapermen in eastern Canada, died here recently. He was at one time telegraph editor of the Toronto Globe and had also held an editorial position at Ottawa.

United States Insist On The Payment Of War Debt Instalment

Washington.—The United States again insisted on payment of the December 15 war debt installment, in its latest note to Great Britain, but left the way open to have it done in the manner considered least disruptive to world finance.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's communication expressed confidence the United States Congress would "be willing to consider any reasonable suggestion" from Great Britain "which will facilitate payment" of the $95,550,000, due a week from today. It also revealed informal suggestions have been made to Great Britain as to how the payment might best be met, but did not show the nature of the proposals.

The note was studied with interest on Capitol Hill, but leaders were cautious in commenting on the reference to the acceptability of the new form of making the transfer.

The reply to Great Britain, said Mr. Hoover, indicated the U.S. was ready to survey the international economic situation, and noted that debt payments "have a very definite relationship to the problem of recovery."

Secretary Stimson said he welcomed suggestion in the British note of December 1 for a joint examination of the world economic situation in preparation for the international monetary and economic conference.

He expressed a belief that "there are important avenues of mutual advantage which should be thoroughly explored," adding:

"Such an examination does not imply cancellation. In such an examination there would necessarily be consideration of other forms of tangible compensation available for the expansion of world markets for products of American agriculture

NOTES AND COMMENTS

War debts are foremost in the public minds of all countries suffering from the worst depression in the world's history. There is not sufficient gold in the world to repay them. Great Britain in reality borrowed meat and produce of all kinds, for which she agreed to pay back in gold to the United States. If the United States would import sufficient goods from Great Britain to repay the equivalent of the debts, it would be ruinous to United States industry. Great Britain points out that if the United States insists in payment in gold, the rehabilitation of Europe is impossible, with every probability of default. Therefore enlightened public opinion in the United States realizes that there must be a new deal on the war debts. The amounts owing to the States, though large, are small compared to what she would lose in international trade should repayment be insisted on.

Great Britain will not default, neither is it likely France will, but all countries engaged in the war and now suffering from its aftermath realize that their interests are so inter-twined that a general re-arrangement must be made to overcome the deadlock of the depression for which war debts are largely responsible.

This Christmas, as never before, will people be able to experience the joy of giving. Never was there such need of "peace on earth and goodwill towards men." We must share what we have to make it a merry Christmas, and there is no doubt that the coming holiday season will call forth the best side of human nature in seeing that the less fortunate are remembered. Many through no fault of their own are in want; many an anxious heart will be wondering how a merry Christmas might be provided. There is nothing that tugs so much at the heartstrings as to face Christmas without the wherewithal to buy toys and presents for the children who will always believe that there is a Santa Claus. Look around; make some quiet enquiries on your own; find out where a little kindness is the most needed, and act accordingly. In this way many may take advantage of making it indeed a merry Christmas, for 'tis more blessed to give than to receive.

On December 10 the Lethbridge Herald celebrated its 25th birthday by issuing an anniversary edition. Reading the special articles by Senator Buchanan, who has guided the destinies of the paper since 1907, the articles by the staff and the letters of congratulation and commendation from prominent men in all parts of the Dominion, impresses one with the esteem in which The Herald is held, and the service it has rendered to Southern Alberta. A newspaper to be worth while must have a vitalizing force working behind the scenes. And the force responsible for The Herald's daily appearance is like a big well-ordered family, each working for the other's good. The contacts they have made, right from the "chief" down, have developed goodwill throughout Southern Alberta, of which there is striking evidence in the many congratulatory letters, published. There is a human touch in The Herald which no other daily in Alberta possesses, and its foremost policy of "Serving the South" is appreciated by old-timers and newcomers. The Journal is pleased to join in the wish—"Many Happy Returns."

Sub-zero weather was the worst enemy the "hunger marchers" from the Crows Nest Pass had to contend with in their advance on Edmonton, which never got beyond Calgary. One life was sacrificed in a useless demonstration. A delegation by train would have been more in keeping with the object sought. It was cruel for the leaders of the unemployed to encourage such a march at this season of the year, causing unwarranted suffering to no purpose.

Intimidation is the weapon used by the Communists to scare single unemployed men from going to work camps. This shows how determined is the effort to foment trouble among the unemployed by aggravating their plight. Unfortunately so many weak-willed ones are bullied into submission instead of accepting the work they so much desire and need.

Adanac Club Notes

A big skating party featured in the regular Friday night meeting of the Adanacs held on Dec. 9th. A large number turned out for this, while others played ping-pong and bridge in the hall.

Following the business meeting supper was served. The appetites of the members made the entertainment committee call to mind a well known poem, "Skater and the Wolves."

Plans were made for forthcoming programs, particularly the dance to be held in the Grand Union hotel on Dec. 23rd. The club orchestra then played for a dance until midnight. The meeting closed with "God Save the King."

Music Pupils Gave Fine Concert

Sub-zero weather prevented a good attendance at the concert given by the pupils of Mr. W. J. Harris, teacher of violin, on Dec. 8 in the K of P hall. A very good program was enjoyed, the assisting artists being Mrs. E. E. Cranston and daughter, Juanita, of Bellevue; Harry Parkinson with his xylophone, and Mrs. Clifford as accompanist. A violin solo, "Cairn gorm," was played by Alfred Moores, and Tom Hill played the "Concerto," which was used as the test piece in the Crows Nest Pass musical festival at Blairmore last March. Mayor Pattinson presided.

The orchestral selections under the leadership of Mr. Harris were a creditable performance by the pupils, which elicited very favorable comment from Rev. A. S. Partington, who also presented the diplomas awarded to Mr. Harris' pupils by the London College of Music. Kenneth Owen of Michel was awarded a bronze medal as a special prize in gaining highest marks in examinations for violin playing.

Those awarded diplomas were: Alfred Moores, Amy Harrison, David C. Jones, F. G. Harris, Mary Partington and Lionel Leonard.

Michel pupils of Mr. Harris' class joined with Coleman pupils in presenting the program. Mrs. Cranston's soprano solos were highly appreciated, her selections being "Carmena", "My Own Little Hut" and "Bonnie Jennie." Mr. Albert Christie was an able accompanist. The musical reading by Juanita Cranston was quite a finished performance, especially for a child of ten years.

Following the concert, refreshments were served to the visitors, who braved the vigors of the wintry blasts to drive from neighboring towns.

Seventeen carloads of frozen turkeys from Manitoba and Saskatchewan were shipped from Saint John for export. It was the first time such a large quantity had passed through that port.

British Columbia's losses by forest fires this year amounted to $371,695, it was reported by Hon. N. S. Lougheed, Minister of Lands. Last year the loss was $1,477,181, and in 1930 it was $1,408,000.

Receives Copley Medal

Royal Society of London Confers Recognition on Californian

Advice has been received that the Royal Society of London has awarded the Copley medal, highest distinction given by England for scientific research, to Dr. George B. Harding of the Mount Wilson (Cal.) observatory.

The first American to receive it was Benjamin Franklin, to whom it was awarded in 1753 for his "curious experiments and observations on electricity."

The present award was for researchers in the magnetic field of the sun. First magnetic phenomena detected outside the earth were the magnetic fields in sun spots, discovered at the Mount Wilson observatory in 1908. Later, with the 150 foot tower telescope on Mount Wilson, the entire sun was found to be a magnet, with a magnetic field stronger than that of the earth but much weaker than the intense fields in sun spots.

Vikings Were Short Lived

Died Between Ages Of Thirty And Forty, Says Professor

Vikings who settled in Greenland centuries ago were senile and worn out at 40, is the belief of Professor F. C. C. Hansen, leading Danish anatomist.

He is now dissecting the frozen remains of vikings brought back to Denmark by the Noerlund expedition to southeastern Greenland. They indicate the men were probably of stocky build, but not very tall and that they died between ages of 30 and 40 years. They suffered greatly from gout and rheumatism, the professor believes.

Church Shipped In Crates

Saskatchewan Game Act

More Rigid Enforcement Of Its Provision Is Probable Amendment to the Saskatchewan Game Act designed to enable the more rigid enforcement of its provisions are expected to come before the Saskatchewan legislature at the next session.

One amendment, copied from the Manitoba Act, will permit of the confiscation of all hunting equipment and transportation facilities being used by hunters who are found guilty of infringements of the Game Act. This clause specifies that motor cars, aeroplanes, firearms, boats, skiffs, canoes or any and all appliances used for hunting may be confiscated to the crown.

Provision is also being made to create additional game sanctuaries throughout the province, it being understood that at least 22 such preserves will be provided for in the schedules to the new act.

Other proposed amendments, it was learned, will be the placing with the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council the power to fix the bag limit for each type of game, and to determine the period of each season for game birds and big game. Previously this was determined by statute and was inflexible.

Becomes Inland Water

Dyke Makes Famous Zuider Zee Into Yael Lake

Famous Zuider Zee, in Holland, has been degraded from the status of a sea to that of an inland water. It is now known as Yael Lake. The change came recently when a dyke, more than 20 miles long, connecting the provinces of North Holland and Friesland, was completed. The dyke separated the Zuider Zee from the North Sea, Queen Wilhelmina will inaugurate a new highway on the dyke in the fall.

Had Double Grievance

Woman Lost Hat And Was Fined For Stopping Train

Everybody must have been tempted at some mad moment to pull a train communication cord; and it is therefore remarkable that the deed has not been committed more often.

Even when a train is stopped there is usually a very good reason, so that a recent case on the Scottish express is all the more worthy of noting.

A woman passenger was leaning out of a window when her hat blew off. She pulled the cord, and the train stopped.

When she explained her awful loss to the guard, however, he most unfeelingly refused to let the train go back for the hat—and, to add to her sense of injury, the passenger had to pay the £5 penalty.

Idea Becoming Popular

England Takes Interest In Linking Up Namesake Towns

England is taking much interest in the Namesake Towns Association movement in which towns in that country link up with those in the United States having the same name. The linked towns are to be about the same size. Already 13 English towns have arranged to join with those in the United States. They are Bath, Beverly, Bristol, Dorchester, Gloucester, Newbury, Northampton, Oxford, Plymouth, Reading, Rochester, Uxbridge and Torrington.

Growth Of India

India's millions are steadily increasing. During the decade just ended, according to the census, the population has increased 34,000,000, to a total of 353,000,000. During the period covered by the census there has been no plague or serious famine. There are 940 females to every 1,000 males.

An inveterate smoker is one who can shave without getting latter on his cigarette.

Where Horses Are Cheap

One Sold At Quebec Fair For Thirty-Five Cents

Whether the site of the Quebec Horse Fair, held this year in the vicinity of St. Charles cemetery, had any effect on the price of the horses or not, the fact remains that the inhabitants of the district paid much less for their "nags" than did their forefathers.

Formerly held in the heart of the city, the fair has grown so popular that it has been forced into the outskirts. This year there were about 300 dealers and some 2,000 spectators. One horse sold for a pair of mittens, another for a watch, and a third for 35 cents. The prevailing price appeared to be from $10 to $20 and anyone making more went home with the same number of equines as he arrived with.

Aged Banker Passes

Death Of Sir George Burn Is Reported At Ottawa

An outstanding Canadian banker and philanthropist, Sir George Burn died at his home at Ottawa recently, aged 85. Although his health had not been good for some years, he was ill for only a short time before his death.

General manager of the old Bank of Ottawa, he held important positions in the banking life of the Dominion. He was president of the Canadian Bankers' Association in 1916, and occupied the post of vice-president for a period of 17 years. His associations with the Bank of Ottawa dated from the year 1880, when he was appointed general manager, until his retirement from that office in 1917.

One Explanation

The chances of a boy or girl going to high school, which in 1890 were only one in twenty-five, have grown steadily until at present they are one in two. It is possible that the increase in the number of those to be educated may have something to do with the mounting cost of education.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 18

IDEALS OF THE TRUE CHRISTIAN

Golden Text: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily, and follow me." Luke 9:23.

Devotional Reading: Philippians 3:18-14.

Explanations and Comments

The Christian's Devotional Life. Many cars and hard work through the hot summer months had so used up the strength and nerves of a Christian woman that she found her self doing and saying things that amazed her. She consulted the family physician. "Just what is the trouble?" she asked. "Your batteries need renewing," was the reply.

"If you want to be on the safe side you would better renew those batteries right away," he continued. "And don't forget that you have two cells in the battery. You have a physical and a spiritual store of cells that need renewing. Neither set will do without the other. The Sabbath, instead of being for you a day of rest and worship, has always been your busiest day, and I know that you have had no time for meditation and spiritual culture. It is the soul that feeds the body, and the soul may starve and waste out just as the body may. Nothing has gone wrong with your body or soul but what can be cured. Your body needs rest and your soul needs to feed in the green pastures and to lie by the still waters with the Good Shepherd."—Adapted from The Youth's Companion.

The Christian in the Home. To be a real Christian in a home to some means costly self-renewal. Controlled temper, decent demeanor no matter how you feel, a radiant spirit even under irritating circumstances—these are simple elements of Christian home life are not easy. Carlyle did not master that much self-denial in his relationships with his wife. "Ah, if I only had five minutes with her," he said after her death, "I only to assure her that I loved her through all that."

And often the demands of self-renewal in a home go deeper. When the loved one must be faced, when sickness fails, the tragedy of which all share, when children arise to college by parents who cannot afford it, when all wrecks lives which nevertheless love will not give up—how intimate, exacting and continuous are the gracious self-bestowals of a true home!

The most beautiful possession on earth is one which man has ever imagined or achieved is a Christian home. Harry Emerson, in The Meaning of Service.

Travels In Invalid Chair

Disabled Soldier Has Covered 20,000 Miles In Last Few Years

F. H. Jarvis, of Thorpe Bay, England, has travelled 20,000 miles in his invalid chair. Since being discharged from hospital in 1924, he has bowled all over England and Scotland. He also took the chair to France and wheeled his way over old World War haunts there. Jervis was a sergeant-major in the Royal Engineers, and was blown up at Passchendaele Ridge in 1917. He spent seven years in the hospital and now is partly paralyzed, is minus a few ribs and wears a silver plate in his skull.

Most Wonderful Man

Famous German Biographer Says, Edison Had Both Genius and Character

Who are the world's greatest living men?

It's a hard question, but Emil Ludwig, famous German biographer of history's giants in mind and action, tried to answer it during his recent visit to London.

Although unable to give definite opinions as to the world's greatest, he admitted with reservations that Mussolini, Shaw and President Masaryk, head of the Czechoslovakian government, had traits of greatness from different angles.

When asked who was the greatest man he had ever met, Ludwig replied without hesitation, "Edison. He was the most wonderful man I have ever known. Not only was he a great inventor, but he was truly great in spirit and personality."

The famous German biographer is now writing a book on the contemporary great men of Europe. He has lived in intimate contact with many of them for months. Recently he spent two weeks with Mussolini in order to study the complete problem of his personality.

But when it came to a great Englishman for inclusion in his work, no one could suggest a man for the distinction, a fact which caused Herr Ludwig considerable pain and disappointment.

Ludwig has a formula for greatness. Unlike the standard of greatness employed by the world, he goes deeper than the mere accomplishment of prodigious feats. He studies a man's character in its minor phases where he affixes the epithet "great." "It is in the small things that give more than a general definition," he declared. "My own personal view is that real greatness depends on two things—genius and character. In assessing whether a man is really great or not I study his character as a temporary measure to relieve the pain of his death. It is not enough to know how he has acted at certain historical moments. I wish to know if he is vain, if he likes animals, if he is fond of music. His personal letters, his face, are as important to me as any acts of statesmanship."

Ludwig believes that there is a physical side to greatness. Men are born with physical and mental traits which inevitably single them out for fame, he says.

He pronounces Mussolini great because he combines energy with imagination. He attributes the significance to the love of music and points out that Lincoln, Bismarck and Napoleon all loved music.

To Aid Unemployment

Twenty-Five Million Workless Create World Crisis for League Solution

Proposals for reduction in hours of labor throughout the world have been laid before the International Labor organization of the League of Nations according to word received by the League of Nations Society in Canada.

With 25,000,000 people unemployed the situation has assumed the nature of a crisis demanding immediate action, and at the recent League conference it was decided to place the matter before the Tripartite Preparatory Conference in January. There was some opposition but the Canadian delegates, Tom Moore and Dr. Tiddell, voted for immediate action.

The League endorsed a 48-hour week proposal in 1918, but a further reduction, it is believed might spread out present employment and help relieve the situation. The 1919 proposal was a permanent measure. The conference will consider whether still further reduction should be taken as a temporary measure to relieve the crisis or a desirable permanent.

"In 1919 it was a social problem," said a Danish delegate, "the object being to reduce the hours of work in order to prevent excessive fatigue for the workers; today the problem is an economic one. One must increase the amount of available unemployment and to remedy the crisis."

A German representative urged immediate action. His country was spending three thousand million marks on unemployment relief. A French delegate asserted there was intense anxiety in the countries with respect to unemployment.

The wage reduction question as a concomitant to the reduction of hours will also be considered. The British government announced its advocacy of a full examination of the reduction problem so long as the standard of living of the wage-earning population was not reduced.

Probed Sea Depths

Dr. William Beebe Went Down Half
Mile in Bathysphere

Dr. William Beebe has come from the soundless, drowned valley of North Island and brought back word of descending deeper into the sea than ever a man did before.

There, half a mile beneath the surface of Challenger Deep, eight miles from Bermuda, he said, he found a world dark and alien as the gulches of the moon.

"But even there we came on life, he said, as he came up the bay on the Monarch of Bermuda. "Luminous fish swept past us. Some were six feet long. They were like lighted ocean liners coming and going out of the night."

He made the epochal descent, with his associate, Otis Barton, in his bathysphere a four-ton steel diving bell with three massive quartz eyes. They went down on September 22, and were submerged three hours.

"At 300 feet down the green changed to a dull gray," Dr. Beebe said. "Jelly fish sailed by. At 500 feet long slender worms, and at 675 feet the first school of argyropelagic—they're silver-batchet fish."

"When we got down into the zone of absolute blackness, all of the marine life—fish, crustaceans, snails—seemed to have a pale illumination of their own."

"Once there seemed to be a gorgeous little light coming straight at me. It got bigger and brighter. It smacked right up to me, seemed to explode so close to my eyes that I snapped my head away."

"Then I sensed that the organism had contact with the outer surface of the glass port and had been stimulated to a hundred points of light."

He could not of course, merely crouch there fish-gazing. Those mountains and valleys of Challenger Deep, he said, are treacherous and unpredictable as the volcanoes that carved them an eon ago. He had to telephone orders to be raised a little, lowered a little; he had to be alert to any threat in the communication system and in the wisp of cable that tied him to a world of light that seemed an infinite journey away.

The strange creatures' light organs he said, left him in no doubt that they functioned as means of illumination—something heretofore undetermined by naturalists.

The bathysphere—which filled up with water in one of the preliminary tests—performed perfectly and he was bringing it back to exhibit in this country.

Credit for the venture, he said must go to the New York Zoological Society, which backed the expedition and under its auspices he will soon begin a series of lectures based on sub-surface sorties.

Sure To Be Searched

When a bell goes ting-a-ling at the St. Louis jail, or a certain light flashes on, persons visiting prisoners there might as well line up to be searched. An apparatus known as a "detectiongraph" has been installed at the jail door to give the alarm when anyone is attempting to smuggle weapons, saws or files into the prison. The metal attracts the electrical apparatus.

Experiment With Fish

Landlocked Salmon To Be Liberated
In Streams Which Head To The Sea

If the fry of landlocked sockeye salmon are liberated in streams which lead to sea will they go out to salt water and then return in due course to reproduce normal sea sockeye?

Canadian scientists are studying this question out in British Columbia and should they find an affirmative answer it would be possible to increase greatly the commercial sockeye production, for eggs of the landlocked salmon, or "kokanee" or "red-fish" as it is generally known, are obtainable in abundance in different Pacific coast areas. For the present, however, the investigators carrying on the work express no opinion as to its probable results.

Previous study has shown that sockeye which have been transformed by some chance into a landlocked fish will reproduce their kind but their kind is a small, stunted fish, of say, only six or eight inches in length. But will the rule work the other way? Or, to phrase the question differently, will young kokanee go to sea if given them a good deal indirectly, since the sockeye salmon of the sea is one of the most valuable Canadian fish.

It's a question of importance, for kokanee themselves are of practically no commercial value but success in the present experiment would make them worth a good deal indirectly, since the sockeye salmon of the sea is one of the most valuable Canadian fish.

Needs Constant Vigilance

To Bring To Justice Hit-and-Run
Drivers

The number of cases of hit-and-run accidents is steadily on the increase. Specially dangerous without some addition to the number. There seems to be no remedy, save increased vigilance, not only on the part of traffic officers but also—and particularly—on the part of pedestrians and other automobile drivers.

The hit-and-run driver usually performs his cowardly feat with no other motive than immediate observation. It is only by constant vigilance that any headway will be made in detecting and bringing to justice these scourges of the road.

It is the duty of all pedestrians to assist the police in every way possible, both by coming forward with any information they have and in losing no time in reporting in every instance where they happen to note the license number of a hit-and-run driver's vehicle. The fullest penalty of the law meted out to any such as are caught and proved guilty will meet with the universal endorsement of the public.—Montreal Star.

Cannot Be Made Defendant

Defence Action Claims Compensation
Board Cannot Be Sued

The Workmen's Compensation Board cannot be made a defendant in a civil action because it is an emanation of the crown and it can only be attacked by petition of right.

This unusual decision is contained in a statement filed at the courthouse in connection with a civil suit of $6,400 damages against the board, brought by T. G. Powell of Calgary.

Powell was severely injured while at construction work on the Royal hotel six years ago. He claims that he was denied proper compensation by the board and has been unable to work since the accident.

The defendant board also claims that the civil action should be stopped because the question of validity of the Workmen's Compensation Act can only be raised by a government warrant.

Foree Rubharb For Winter

To have fresh rubharb for the winter take all one has to do is to take a portion of a crown from the garden in the late fall (or dig it up during the winter), let it freeze solidly, then put in the cellar where the temperature is from 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. No earth is required, the bushy crowns or sections themselves containing enough stored energy to produce the edible stalks; and for the best colour they should be kept in almost total darkness.—Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

OVER 12 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

Literacy in Canada Vanishing

Over 92 Per Cent. Of Population Over
Five Years Of Age Can Either
Read Or Write

It is disclosed by the official census of Canada taken in 1931 that illiteracy in the Dominion has almost reached the vanishing point. According to the census 92.34 per cent. of the population of Canada over five years of age could either read or write. This was an increase of 2.34 per cent. in literacy from 1921 to 1931.

Students enrolled in Canadian schools in 1931 numbered 2,542,747 with an average daily attendance of 1,727,556. With a population of only slightly over ten millions, these figures indicate that practically one-quarter of the population was attending school or universities. In 1931 there were 84,208 teachers in the Dominion.

Higher education in Canada is made available at a nominal cost to all. There are 17 universities in the Dominion and several colleges and other smaller educational institutions. The number of pupils attending universities and colleges in Canada last year totalled 41,168.

An Octogenarian Horseman

Eighty-Three-Year-Old Farmer Wins
Trophy At Royal Winter Fair

Age evidently neither withers nor dampens the interest in horses of Ben Rothwell, a farmer on the outskirts of Ottawa. Though 83 years of age he accompanied his own pure-bred Clydesdale stallion to the Royal Winter Fair recently held in Toronto, and won the grand championship and the perpetual trophy with his "Bramante Zenith." This is the horse that he personally went over to Scotland to buy when he was 80 years old and brought back himself. When he showed this championship stallion in the ring at Toronto recently, Mr. Rothwell kept pace without any apparent difficulty when the horse trotted and walked. He is the father of George B. Rothwell, Live Stock Commissioner for the Canadian Government Department of Agriculture.

A "flying laboratory with a robot relief pilot built into its mechanism, has been completed at Los Angeles and is ready for trial flights by Lieut. Commander Frank Hawke, speed pilot. The low-wing 200-mile an hour monoplane is equipped with a mechanical device known as a robot pilot, which through air pressure design, will fly the ship while Hawke rests. After testing the craft he will fly it to New York.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Nearing End of Career

Woman Has Tended Lighthouse On
Brittany Coast 42 Years

One of the bravest women in France is surely Mme. Marie-Perrine Durand, the 80-year-old lighthouse keeper on the island of Ouessant on the Brittany coast. For 42 years Mme. Durand has kept the beacon burning brightly to warn mariners of the dangerous and tempestuous stretches along the coast of Brittany. Ever since her husband died 42 years ago Mme. Durand and only her daughter has climbed the seventy odd steps to the top of the tower and trimmed the giant lamps that cast a light over the treacherous rocks.

Asked how she managed to light the lamps when she was ill, Mme. Durand said: "The lamp must always be lighted at the proper time. Ah! Yes, two years ago I had an attack of appendicitis, but despite that I had to climb up the 70 granite steps on my hands and knees and do my work."

This heroic woman is not frightened when the little lighthouse is surrounded by the angry seas in the winter time. "During the winter," she said, "giant waves beat over the lighthouse itself and as I look out through the wave washed windows of the beacon house I often find myself bent back when I see the giant rollers engulfing the entire lighthouse."

"During the war what sights have been enacted before my eyes. There was the trawler, for instance, torpedoed by a German submarine right in front of the lighthouse. And when the beacon lights swept over the sinking ship I could see the poor boys jumping overboard into the sea. What a nightmare as their screams sounded in my ears. I can bear anything but I cannot stand the horrible memory of that awful scene. When the beacon lights flashed over the ships came right out of the night from nowhere and were dashed to pieces on the rocks."

Mme. Durand was appointed by the state to instruct five other women in lighthouse keeping and among her pupils was her daughter.

As for me," she said, "my career is at an end. Soon I will retire and I will lower my anchor calmly and confidently for God knows that I have given good instructions to those who will take my place."

General Knowledge

Children Very Often Ignore of Most Simple Things

The motor-coach was passing the Braes of Balquidder, one of the famous beauty-spots of the Scottish Highlands, and the driver mentioned that Rob Roy's grave lay some two miles off the road.

A small boy—and a Scottish small boy—sitting behind, turned to his mother.

"Who was Rob Roy?" he asked. "Of course you know," the mother replied vaguely. "He invented porridge."

It may sound unbelievable, but the writer was present when the incident occurred, and can vouch for its truth. And, unfortunately, too many young people have gaps just as startling in their knowledge.

A year or so ago, in an official report, a London, Eng., school inspector revealed the fact that many trans-Atlantic flights by inexperienced pilots with inadequately equipped aircraft. The crossing of the Atlantic by air has become of such importance for purposes of scientific investigation and record. There is no longer any novelty or glory attaching to it. If the aviator gets across, well and good. If he does not, it is just another addition to the growing list of missing airmen. Both the trans-Atlantic flight and other hazardous ventures which have already been achieved by experienced and lucky aviators.—Montreal Star.

There are thousands of other children in cities who have never seen a farm or a cow. Some of them even have the remotest idea of what cows are for.

School journeys are doing something to remedy this state of affairs, but there is still a great deal of ignorance of the simplest and most elementary things among our young people.

Yet general knowledge is supposed to be an important school subject. And the average child today does know about railways and motor-cars and all sorts of mechanical things.

This is all to the good, for we live in a machine age. But there is something more to life than just machinery, and it seems a pity that the children aren't learning about the other things as well.—Answers.

'War Debts And Credits

Cannot Be Divided Unless Allies Get
Credit For Their Dead

An article in the Montreal Star says it is a fair conjecture that the payment of the December instalments actually add to the amounts which the European nations will ultimately have to pay, if they go on paying. But how can they? Germany has definitely stopped. Nothing will start her again. She repudiates with a great moral fervor because she is convinced that her debt always was unjust. If she does not pay how can France and Great Britain raise the money? What they need is a moral fervor of their own which will declare to the world that the so-called and fantastic bookkeeper's effort to be divided into debts and credits—which cannot morally be so divided unless the Allies be given credit for their dead from Mons to Chateau Thierry.

Accomplishments Of Prince

Heir To British Throne Is An Expert
Conjurer

Few people know the full extent of the Prince of Wales' accomplishments. His ability as a dancer is, of course, widely known, but he laments that he seldom finds a partner who can "tango" with the intricate rhythm so necessary for the full enjoyment of the dance. The Prince is also a past-master in the art of conjuring, and, in fact, had lessons from a world-famed magician a few years ago. Such tricks as turning a handkerchief into a flag and producing rabbits from a hat are small fry to the Prince. His ambition in this line, however, is to be able to do the famous "needle-swallowing" trick. Several needles are swallowed (trick), then a reel of cotton, and a glass of water. With the ejaculation of those very magic words, "hey, presto," the needles are taken out of the mouth all nicely threaded together!

THE RHYMIST OPTIMIST

By ALMA MICHAELS

ESCAPE

When life has vanquished me,
And baffled, whipped, I stand
Where granite walls of misery
Rise high on either hand.
Do I in darkness bow
My head to bitter fate,
And weep for every broken vow,
Each pillaged hope's estate?

When life would crush and rend,
I have a secret stair.
By which my spirit can ascend.
The still, white way of prayer:
And up and up I climb
From out my prison-place,
Until I walk in realms sublime
Before Love's shining face!

Life cannot shut me in
Its dungeons of despair,
For my sure escape can win
Along the way of prayer!

Safeguarding The Reckless

Inexperienced Pilots No Longer
Allowed To Fly Trans-Atlantic

There will be universal approval of the action taken by the American government to prevent in future any trans-Atlantic flights by inexperienced pilots with inadequately equipped aircraft. The crossing of the Atlantic by air has become of such importance for purposes of scientific investigation and record. There is no longer any novelty or glory attaching to it. If the aviator gets across, well and good. If he does not, it is just another addition to the growing list of missing airmen. Both the trans-Atlantic flight and other hazardous ventures which have already been achieved by experienced and lucky aviators.—Montreal Star.

Asthma Cannot Last when the greatest of all asthma specifics is used. Dr. D. K. Kelley's Asthma Remedy assuredly deserves this exalted title. It has to its credit thousands of cases where other preparations had failed to benefit. It brings help to even the most severe cases and brings the patient to a condition of blessed relief. Surely suffering from asthma is needless when a remedy like this is so easily secured.

CANADIAN WOMEN FIND DUSTING DISTASTEFUL

Dust cloths going into discard;
Unpleasant to use; a bother to Wash

APPLEFORD WONDER PAPER
HAS GREAT VOGUE

Of all household tasks, that of dusting is the least appealing to the majority of women.

However, this condition, like many another connected with house work, is undergoing radical change. In a great many Canadian homes the women are discarding dust cloths entirely, and are using Appleford Wonder Paper instead, because it actually dusters—as it cleans—as it polishes, doing a better and much quicker job than the old dust cloth ever did.

This new, and extremely modern Wonder Paper, is made from clean, dry, and soft paper pulp, treated in a scientific way with a high-grade furniture polish; and absorbs dirt instead of spreading it.

Appleford Wonder Paper comes in handy-sized packets of twenty-five sheets for twenty-five cents. You crumple a sheet into a soft wad and go over the surfaces requiring attention. Then wash one side of the sheet, and turn the Wonder Paper inside out. After you have given a quick and lasting finish to furniture and woodwork, you can still use Wonder Paper on the floors, if you wish.

And when you are through, there's no old dust to shake out or wash. Throw the soiled Wonder Paper away and you've completed the most tiresome part of housework in half the time and with half the effort.

Wonder Paper is made by the makers of the famous PARA-SANI Heavy Waxed Paper in the Green Box.

Death of William Holly

The death occurred in Calgary Holy Cross hospital. of William Holly aged 48 years, on Saturday Dec 10. The cause of death is reported to have been influenza, he having been seized whilst on the trip to Edmonton as one of the delegation of "hunger marchers" from the Crow's Nest Pass. The bitterly cold weather of last week proved so severe that he was taken ill before the party reached Calgary, though it is reported he was riding in a closed car. Mrs. Holly was called to Calgary on Friday when his condition became critical. The body was brought back to Coleman on the early morning train on Monday.

Deceased came to Coleman in 1923, and was employed at the International mine until the strike of March last. He became active in the ranks of the Workers Unity League, and was one of the candidates sponsored by that organization for school trustees in February last. His death therefore causes a vacancy on the board, as he was elected for a two-year term. Following resumption of work at the conclusion of the strike, he was among the number who were not taken back. He had been employed on relief work on the highway.

During the war he served in France with the C. E. F., having enlisted at Lethbridge in an artillery battery. In 1927 he was on the executive of the Canadian Legion here, and for a time was on the executive of the M. W. U. of C. He is survived by his wife and two children. His mother lives here, also his brother David, and there is an older brother in Australia. The family's original home was in Wales.

The funeral was held on Wednesday, from the Crowe Nest Undertaking Co. funeral home.

The body was taken to the Ukrainian hall, and was followed to
